NOVEMBER 1776:

November 20, 1776: George Washington's Continental Army retreated across New Jersey under British pursuit. With American independence hanging in the balance, the army faced one of its most difficult periods. The fight for freedom was far from over.

"A crimson fire that vanquishes the stars;
A pungent odor from the dusty sage;
A sudden stirring of the huddled herds;"

October City Council Meeting Highlights

The Whitewater City Council met October 26 at City Hall. Here are highlights from the meeting.

Chicken Ordinance Updated

The Council approved Ordinance No. 648, updating Whitewater's chicken regulations. Up to six laying hens are allowed per residential property by permit, with a $20 annual fee; roosters remain prohibited. Changes include a June 1 registration deadline, required coop inspections, sanitation standards, and setbacks of 15 feet from a dwelling on the same property and 25 feet from a dwelling on an adjacent property. The ordinance also establishes procedures for correcting violations and appealing decisions. Penalties are $50 for keeping chickens without a current permit and registration and $25 per incident for chickens running at large.

City Projects and Community Growth

Recent lift station problems required temporary pumping assistance. The Council discussed long-term replacement options estimated at $100,000–$175,000. Three 2026 projects remain incomplete and unpaid: fire hydrants, the City Shop roof, and ADA ramps, totaling approximately $30,000.

The Council approved producing the first ornament in a planned annual Whitewater series, at an estimated cost of $3,500. Other discussions included attracting new residents and businesses, additional ballfields, a fitness court, walking trails, ballfields lighting, and weatherproof digital signage.

Department and Community Updates

Public Works completed street sweeping before Fred Fest, continued routine maintenance, and reported progress on IdeaTek's fiber installation. Residents who suspect water leaks on their property should contact a plumber to investigate.

Animal Control continues addressing local wildlife concerns. The City Clerk reported $2,825 in advertising revenue through September, compared with $1,352 during the same period in 2025. Whitewater's Fred Fest parade float placed fourth and helped launch the "In the Heart of It All" campaign.

Employee Compensation

Following performance evaluations, the Council approved hourly pay increases for the City Treasurer, City Maintenance employee, and City Clerk, effective November 1.

Next Council Meeting: November 23, 2026 • 7:00 PM

All are welcome at City Council meetings!

Public comment is limited to 5 minutes per person; contact the City Clerk to request to speak on a specific topic by noon Wednesday before the meeting.

HISTORY HIGHLIGHTED

World War I

The conflicts of World War I are generally thought to have been from July 1914 to November 11, 1918. April 1917 was when the United States shifted from being neutral to full involvement.

Butler County, and more specifically Whitewater, contributed to the war effort. WW I was the first major conflict since the beginning of the town.

Whitewater men were assigned to several major battles including: Verdun, Argonne Forrest, Vosges, and the decisive Allied offensive of Meuse-Argonne. Some took advantage of the Student Army Training Corps, a short-lived program of U.S. colleges training draftees for officer roles. The government program provided housing, food, and pay while students combined their college studies with military drills. Local participation in this program was primarily at Kansas State Agricultural College (Kansas State University).

The Butler County draft. July 1918.

Others were involved State-side in support roles for two fronts - the war and the flu. It is well known the flu of 1918 began at Camp Funston (Fort Riley) with a documented case in March 1918. The flu was carried by soldiers, unknowingly, from Kansas to eventually become a global epidemic.

PROUD TO ANNOUNCE

The Chapple Diamond Sports Foundation

Building Athletes. Building Communities. Building Futures.

Ever since my widow-maker heart attack, I've looked at life a little differently. I've thought a lot about what I want to accomplish, what I want to leave behind, and how I can make a positive difference in the lives of others.

One thing has become very clear to me: I want to build something that will last long after I'm gone.

Today, I'm proud to share the vision behind the Chapple Diamond Sports Foundation.

My dream is to bring competitive, affordable baseball and softball opportunities to Whitewater and the surrounding communities. I want to give kids, young adults, men, and women a place to compete, develop their talents, build friendships, and experience everything that makes sports so special.

Through the Whitewater Rapids, Wichita Braves, Whitewater Warhawks, and our growing baseball and softball programs, we're working toward something much bigger than any one team.

But I want to make one thing absolutely clear.

The community of Whitewater is the lifeblood of everything I'm trying to build.

I could not do this without the incredible people of this town. The coaches who give their time, the players who believe in our programs, the families who support us, the businesses that step up, and the fans who come out to cheer us on.

You are the reason this dream is becoming a reality.

I love Whitewater. I believe in this town, its people, and its future. I want to see Whitewater grow, succeed, and become a community known for giving athletes opportunities they might not have anywhere else.

I know there will be challenges. I know this won't happen overnight. But I'm determined to keep building, keep growing, and keep giving back to the community that has given so much to me.

And someday, when my boys look back at what we've accomplished, I hope they'll see something they can be proud of and something worth carrying forward.

This isn't just my dream anymore. It's something I hope the entire community can take pride in.

From the bottom of my heart, thank you, Whitewater, for believing in what we're building.

We're just getting started.

Community Spotlight
Meet Jaivyn

A Little House, A Whole Lot of Heart!

Eagle Scout Project Preserves a Community Tradition for Generations to Come

For Jaivyn, the little red Santa House has always been part of growing up in Whitewater. She remembers the excitement and traditions that made the holiday season special. So, when she began looking for a meaningful project to help her take the next step toward becoming an Eagle Scout, a familiar little building in her hometown came to mind.

With her 18th birthday approaching in January, Jaivyn was running short on time to complete the project. She was just a few steps away from earning Scouting America's highest rank, and she wanted her Eagle Scout project to make a lasting difference in the community.

A Tradition Worth Saving

The Santa House had seen better days. What was once a familiar part of Whitewater's holiday season had become weathered and dingy, with porch boards beginning to rot. Jaivyn didn't want to see it torn down. Instead, she saw an opportunity to restore something meaningful—not just for herself, but for the children who would come after her.

She wanted to give the building new life while preserving the memories and traditions connected to it. Her hope was that future generations of Whitewater children could experience the same kind of holiday excitement she remembered growing up.

"I wanted to fix it so it wouldn't be torn down, and so new generations of kids could have the same Christmas and holiday memories."

— Jaivyn

A Santa House Becomes a Holiday House

The original idea was to bring the Santa House back to life as a brighter, safer version of the building everyone remembered. But as Jaivyn thought more about the project, her vision began to grow.

Whitewater decorates and celebrates throughout the year—not just at Christmas. From Halloween to the Fourth of July, there are plenty of opportunities to bring the community together. Why limit the little building to just one season?

That question helped transform the project into a year-round Holiday House. A fresh, neutral color scheme would allow the building to serve as a backdrop for many different celebrations and decorations throughout the year.

The City of Whitewater donated the paint for the project. Jaivyn even joked that the City had better taste than she did when it came to choosing the color!

Family businesses Greene Barn and Enchanted Celebrations also helped fund the project, giving Jaivyn support as her idea became a reality.

One Day, Many Helping Hands

On October 24, the workday brought together an impressive group of helping hands. Jaivyn was joined by family members, Troop 4232 from Towanda, fellow staff members from Quivira Scout Ranch, and friends from Greene Barn and Enchanted Celebrations.

It was a community effort in every sense of the word. Jaivyn's crew also took time to install light clips around the Holiday House, making it easier to decorate for future celebrations. The City later added updated lighting designed for year-round use, giving the little building an even more welcoming glow.

For Jaivyn, one of the most memorable parts of the entire experience wasn't simply seeing the finished building. It was seeing how many people cared enough to give their time and help make something meaningful to her happen.

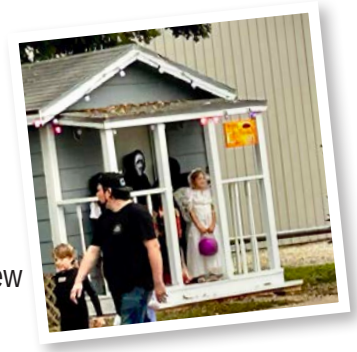

"So many people cared and gave their free time to help with something meaningful to me."

— Jaivyn

She says she couldn't have completed the project in just one day without everyone who showed up to help. What began as her Eagle Scout project quickly became a shared effort, with friends, family, local organizations, and the City all playing a part.

More Than a Fresh Coat of Paint

The newly refreshed Holiday House didn't have to wait long to begin its next chapter. Just days after the October workday, children were already enjoying the porch during Whitewater's annual Trick-or-Treat Street event. It was a fitting first glimpse of what Jaivyn envisioned—a place where the community could gather, celebrate, and create new memories throughout the year.

Jaivyn hopes the project can be one small step toward making Whitewater feel fresh and inviting—a place where children have room to play, create memories, and enjoy the same kinds of experiences she had growing up.

And while the Christmas tradition that inspired the project will always have a special place, she hopes the Holiday House will help create new traditions, too.

A Legacy for the Next Generation

What started as a project to save a familiar little building has become something bigger: a renewed community space with room for more memories, more celebrations, and more traditions.

Jaivyn's project is a reminder that preserving a community doesn't always require a major undertaking. Sometimes it starts with one person noticing something worth saving—and caring enough to make a difference.

As Jaivyn put it:

"It was such a wonderful opportunity to be able to do this for my community, and I am so happy I got to make it happen in just one day. Big thanks to the City of Whitewater."

Thank you, Jaivyn, for choosing Whitewater for your Eagle Scout project and for helping give this little house a whole lot of new life.

MAYOR'S MUMBLINGS

From the Mayor of Whitewater, Kansas

The Holidays are upon us; summer and fall flew by this year. I am looking forward to seeing everyone's Christmas decorations this year. HMMM... Maybe we should have a contest for best decorated house and most Griswald looking house. Also make sure your kids put their Christmas letters to Santa in the mailbox so we can deliver them to the North Pole.

As the Mayor, I enjoy hearing people's ideas about the future of Whitewater. The City Council has been working on improving things piece by piece. Recently we were able to complete the ADA ramps around the downtown area. The special occasion house downtown was recently updated as part of an Eagle Scout project.

Baseball/softball season has come to an end. I want to thank everyone who came out to the baseball/softball fields and supported the teams all spring, summer and fall. Basketball season will be starting shortly for school kids. Please get down to middle school and support them.

DRIVERS.... PLEASE SLOW DOWN, BETTER LATE THAN HAVING TO PAY A SPEEDING TICKET, THOSE RED AND BLUE LIGHTS ARE NOT CHRISTMAS LIGHTS. THEY WILL BE DEPUTY MOORE DOING A GRINCH CHRISTMAS AS HE HANDS YOU A TICKET!

Trick-or-Treat Street was a great success this year. I loved seeing the kids and adults dressed up in costumes. Thank you to all the downtown businesses and the Fire Department for passing out the awesome treats. The library also did a great job.

Whitewater is a nice little community, and I hope that we can continue to make improvements to our town. The City Council and I intend to keep moving forward and improving things each year.

We will have openings on our volunteer boards at the end of the year, so if you are interested, please let us know of your interest. The boards are Parks and Recreation, Cemetery, Planning and Zoning.

Diabetes Awareness Month: Small Steps Can Make a Big Difference

November is Diabetes Awareness Month, a time to increase understanding of a disease that affects millions of Americans, including many Kansans. Diabetes occurs when the body cannot properly use or produce insulin, causing blood sugar levels to rise. Left unmanaged, diabetes can lead to serious health complications, including heart disease, kidney disease, vision loss, and nerve damage. According to health professionals, many individuals with prediabetes do not realize they are at risk. Common risk factors include being overweight, physical inactivity, family history of diabetes, high blood pressure, and age. The good news is that lifestyle changes such as healthy eating, regular physical activity, and maintaining a healthy weight can significantly reduce the risk of developing Type 2 diabetes. We encourage residents to focus on practical habits that support overall health. Incorporating more fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and lean proteins into meals, while limiting added sugars and highly processed foods, can help improve blood sugar management. Regular physical activity, even a daily walk, can make a meaningful difference. As we observe Diabetes Awareness Month, take time to learn your risk factors, schedule recommended health screenings, and encourage family members to do the same. Small, consistent lifestyle choices today can lead to healthier outcomes tomorrow.
